

CURRENT ISSUES IN OUT-OF-SCHOOL TIME. (A SERIES OF BOOKS) BY EDITOR HELEN JANC MALONE.

A series of books published looking into the current issues in the out-of-school space. Content includes both research and promising practices.

Under the direction of Editor Helen Janc Malone, Information Age Publishing has released a series of books probing current issues in the out-of-school time space. The series combines research and promising practices from practitioners.

The first book in the series, The Growing Out-of-School Time Field: Past, Present, and Future (2017) supplies a foundation for the series. The Social and Emotional Learning in Out-Of-School-Time: Foundations and Futures (2018) offers discussions of social-emotional learning. The third book, Changemakers! Practitioners Advance Equity and Access in Out-of-School Time Programs (2019), addresses the issues through an equity lens examining interactions that organizations, programs, and OST professionals have with traditionally under-served young people and their communities.
